

Is Your Homeschool Firmly Planted?

Heidi St. John, The Busy Mom

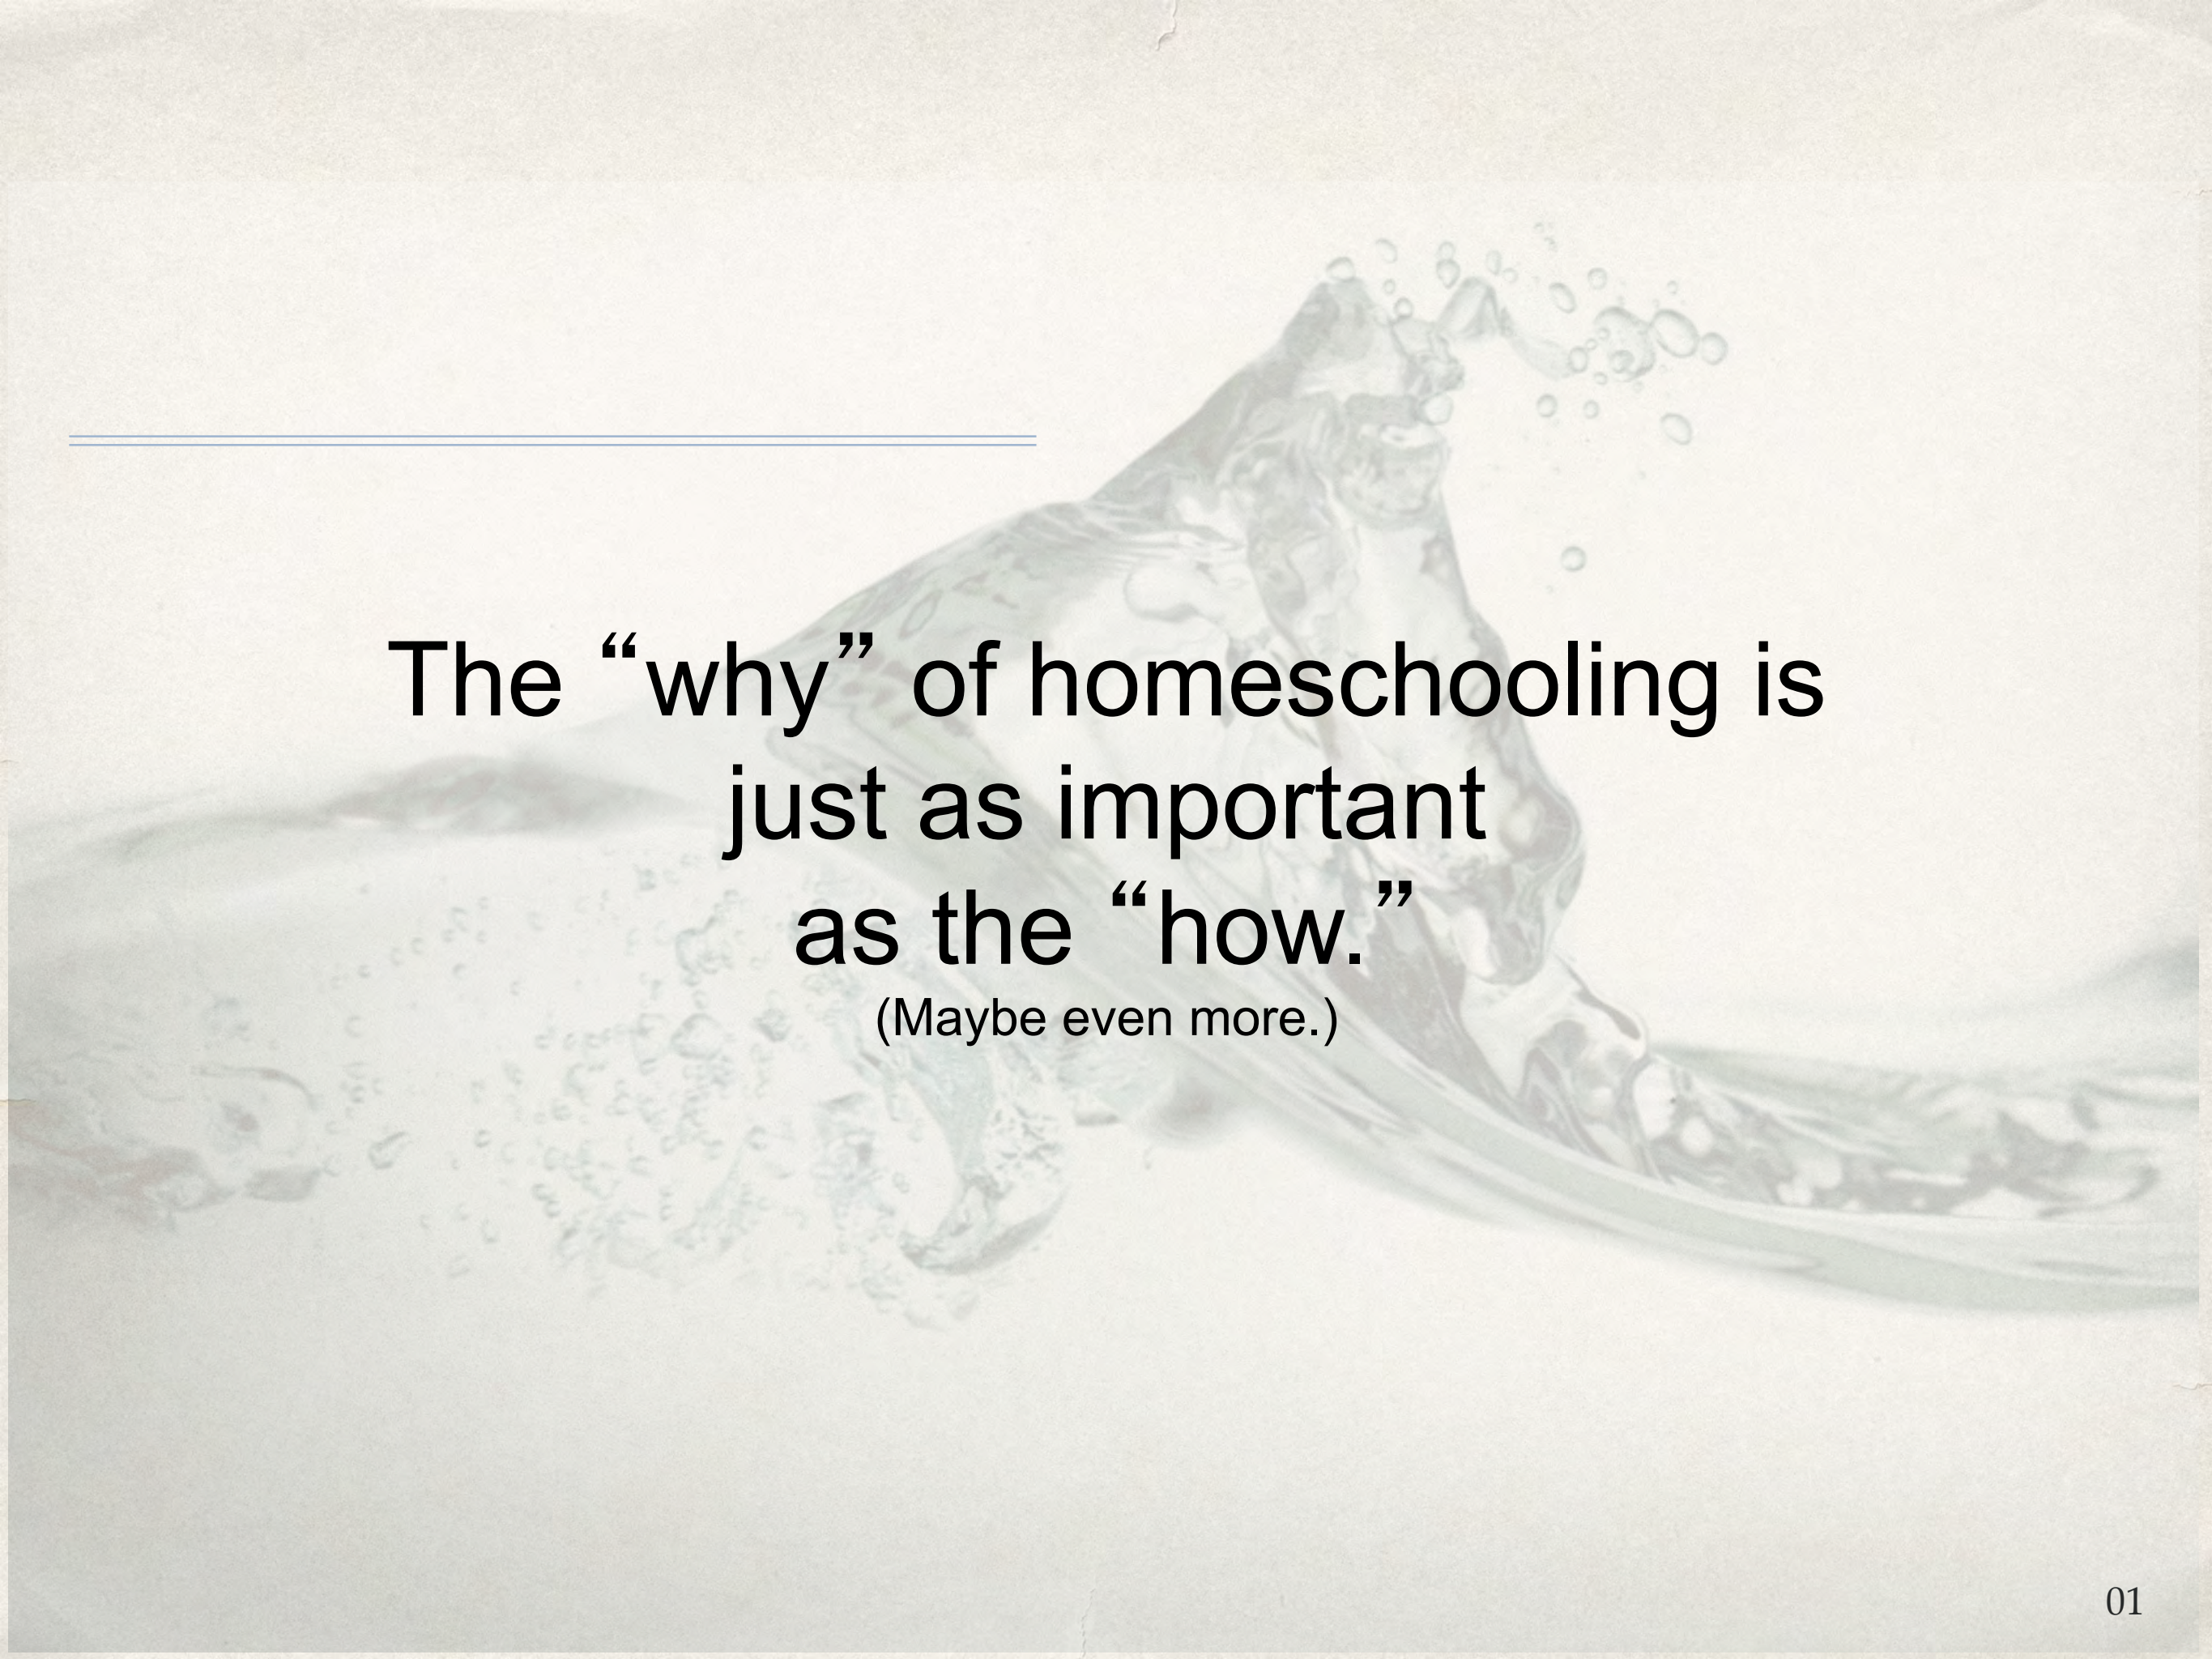

Andrew Pudewa, Director
Institute for Excellence in Writing

Is your homeschool “firmly planted?”

Homeschooling is changing... but some things remain the same.

The “why” of homeschooling is just as important as the “how.”

(Maybe even more.)

The homeschool

journey

is as much about parents
as it is about their kids.
(Maybe even more.)

A background image showing a dynamic splash of water, with droplets and ripples visible, creating a sense of movement and freshness.

Strength is found in the Lord.

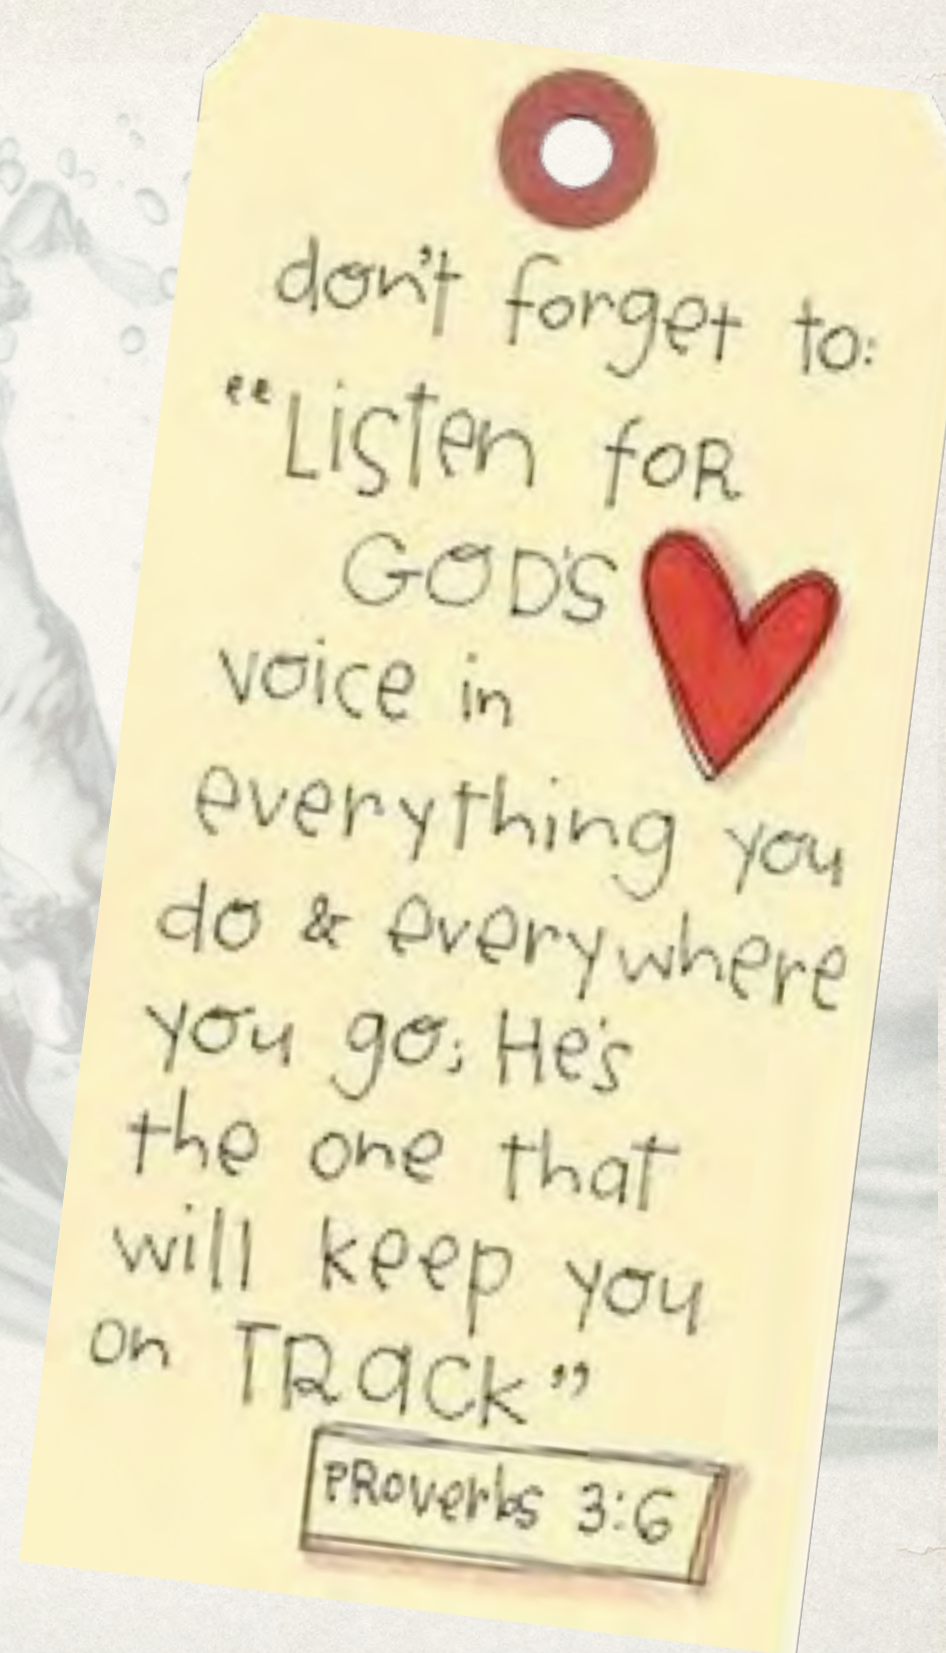

Isaiah 58:11

The LORD will guide you continually, giving you water when you are dry and restoring your strength. You will be like a well-watered garden, like an ever-flowing spring.

Our kids are watching us.

4 questions to ask yourself

- * Where does my strength come from?
- * What kind of example am I setting?
- * Do I go to the Bible for answers?
- * Have I made it a habit to be in God's Word?

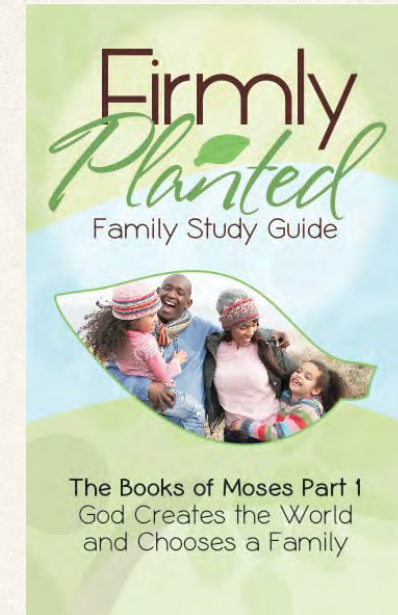

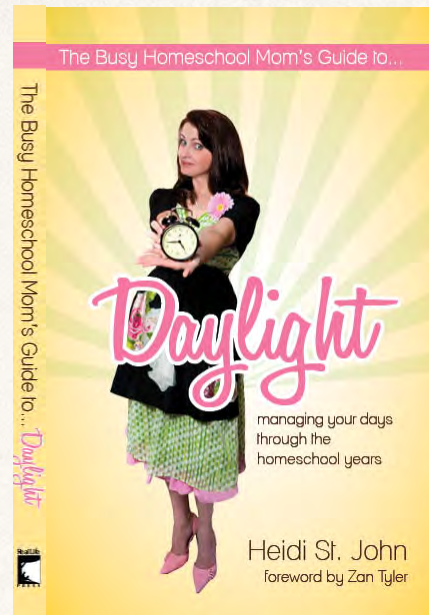

Focus on the planner,
not the plan.

Jeremiah 29:11

“For I know the plans I have for you, declares the Lord...”
