Instructions

In order of preference, here are three ways to use this packet:

(Mr. Pudewa prefers the first method.)

1. Students build their own notebook as the teacher hands out pages.

Teachers keep the packet and give students a binder with sixteen tabbed dividers.

Teachers hand out the content pages as elements are taught.

Students file the information behind the appropriate tab and build their own writing resource.

2. Students build their own notebook from the packet kept in the back of the binder.

Students store the entire packet behind the last tab until instructed.

Teachers have them find certain pages from the packet as they need them. Students file them behind the appropriate tab.

Students build their entire notebook at the start.

Students insert all the pages from the packet behind the appropriate tabs.

Students can access pages as they are taught throughout the year.

Note Making and Outlines Process

- 1. READ and discuss the text.
- 2. WRITE the key word outline (KWO).

Take notes from each sentence in the paragraph.

Use two to three key words per line.

Symbols, numbers, and abbreviations are free.

Put a comma between each word or symbol.

3. TEST the key word outline (KWO).

Read the words on the outline.

Think of a complete sentence using the key words on one line.

Look up from your paper, and look at your audience.

Look over the people's heads if that helps.

If there is a podium, hold onto it with both hands.

Speak. Say the sentence that you made up.

Speak clearly. Repeat the process for the rest of the outline.

Sample Unit 1 KWO

1. Read the source text.

The Kakapo

The kakapo (kay-kay-poh) is a green parrot that lives in New Zealand. The name "kakapo" means night parrot because it comes out only at night. This large bird has the body of a parrot and the face of an owl. The kakapo cannot fly, but it can climb trees. It glides from tree to tree using its wings for balance and braking. It is endangered because predators have moved onto the island and find this flightless bird easy prey.

2.	Create an outline (2–3 key words per line).

Symbols and Abbreviations

Symbols, numbers, and abbreviations are free on the outline. They do not count as one of your three words. A symbol is legal if you can write it in the amount of time it takes to write the number 4. Below are a few symbols that can be useful as you create your key word outlines. Feel free to add your own!

Retelling Narrative Stories Process

- 1. READ and discuss the text.
- 2. WRITE the key word outline (KWO).

Use the Story Sequence Chart as a guide and notice that each paragraph has a purpose. Do not choose words from each sentence.

Story Sequence Chart

I. Characters and Setting

Who is in the story?

What are they like?

When does it happen?

Where do they live or go?

These questions help you describe the "Once upon a time" part of the story.

II. Conflict or Problem

What do they need or want? What do they think?

What do they say and do?

These questions help draw out the problem that the main character encounters along with how he or she deals with it.

III. Climax and Resolution

How is the need resolved?

What happens after?

What is the message or lesson?

These questions help you express the climax and tell the story's end.

3. DISCUSS the KWO.

Have the students brainstorm alternative ways to express their ideas about the story, suggesting synonyms for various nouns and verbs in the story.

4. WRITE the story.

Rewrite the story in three paragraphs using the KWO based on the Story Sequence Chart. Add the stylistic techniques listed on the checklist. Create a title using one to three key words from the final sentence.

A Valuable Lesson

One fine day, which happened to be the king's birthday, the royal cook decided to bake a cake for the king. He put in a little of this and a little of that, a pinch of this and a quart of that until finally it was done. He was about to scoot it into the oven when a voice from the doorway said, "How much sugar you got in there?" The cook turned to see the official button maker lazily standing outside the bakery. The cook answered, "Two cups." The impertinent person then complained, "Only two cups? When my mother bakes a cake, she puts in five cups of sugar!" Since the cook was eager to please the king's subject, he put six cups of sugar in the cake.

The cook was about to slip the cake into the oven when another voice from the doorway said, "Any chocolate in that cake?" The cook said, "Yes." The man, who was the chief cheese maker, complained, "It doesn't look like there's chocolate in that cake!" The cook promptly plopped in two more cubes of chocolate. Soon a whole crowd was at the cook's doorway, yelling out what they thought was supposed to be in a cake, and the cook threw in whatever they recommended. When they all left, the cook frantically threw the somewhat lumpy cake into the oven. When the cake was done, he slapped some icing on it and stuffed it into a box.

Later that afternoon at the party, the king sent for the cake. When it arrived, he cut himself a piece and tasted it. He chewed a little, and then he spat it out! He accusingly pointed a finger at the cook and spluttered, "Did YOU make the cake!?!" The cook, who was backing toward the door, meekly answered, "Yes?" That was the last word the cook said in the palace because he was thrown out of the kingdom. He now goes from door to door giving his services as a cook. He learned a valuable lesson that day: Never try to please everybody.

Each section of the story sequence becomes one paragraph of the story.

Title repeats 1–3 key words from the final sentence of the story.

Do you like tacos? George does. He consumed 267 tacos last week!

He reasons, "They contain all the major food groups in one."

The old woman asked, "Would you like an apple?"

The young lady replied, "They do look lovely. I would take one, but I was told not to accept gifts from strangers."

"Why don't you take one," coaxed the old lady, "and see for yourself?"

The young lady replied, "Well, my grandmother did say, 'You can always trust an old lady." The old woman agreed that older people could certainly be trusted.

The cat leaped; the mouse fled.

Semicolons;

• Use instead of a period when two sentences are expressing one idea.

Hyphens (-) and en dashes (-)

 Use hyphens in some compound nouns. You will need to consult a dictionary to know which need them.

• Use hyphens with compound adjectives before a noun.

• Use hyphens with compound numbers from twenty-one to ninetynine and in spelled out fractions like one-fourth.

• Use hyphens in phone numbers.

• Use an en dash to indicate a span of numbers.

Em Dashes (—) and Parentheses

• For emphasis, use em dashes in place of commas.

• To minimize, use parentheses in place of commas.

• Em dashes indicate an interruption in speech or a sudden break in thought.

Colons:

• Use a colon after a complete sentence to set up a list, example, or quotation. Do not use after words such as "for example."

• Use a colon to separate the hour and minutes when telling time.
